
Have a merry and highly charged Christmas!!

My ingenious little gift may need some explanation. It was inspired by a kitchen counter that looks like this: Never enough outlets and all the plugs tangled with my phone wire.

There are unused outlets all over my house but they are lower on the walls and what's one to do? Dangle the phone from one like a cat toy or a dog treat?

There is always a better way and your gift is it. It's a charging pocket.

Your phone with its wire will fit into the pocket (or your camera battery with charger or any number of other chargeables).

If you are afraid you might forget your phone when it's out of sight, simply set its alarm for a few minutes before you need to leave and it will remind you where it is.

I hope you will find this to be a handy little item but I realize that not everyone will so I have built in some special magic. If you have no use for this simply give it away. All of the love I have put into it for you will (this is the magic part) stay with you and not with the pocket! (You will of course have to add some love for its next owner. I leave that up to you.)
